As the roads south of Louisville and those beyond Cincinnati differ in breadth of track, it vived past critic isms unnecessary, because, whether just or ook, they are not calculated to produce that ment of the recent war. We think the critikindly feeling which should ever exist among those whose interesis are the same and whose rections which agitate the country are in all spects identical. We think the criticisms just, because they lose sight of the geographologosition of Kentucky and fail to consider it. Kentucky and fail to consider it. injust, because they lose sight of the geographical position of Kentucky and fail to consider that Kentucky had friends on the north as well as on the south side of the Ohio river, with whom it was advisable to maintain relations of amity and kindly feeling. The Tribune also fails to consider that human nature is the same in all ages and in all latitudes, and that a people who have been long enjoying the protection of a good government are indisposed to embark in a revolution until it becomes manifest that the rights which they had previously enjoyed are seriously cudangered by the usurpations of power.

As a rule, we have ever believed and contended that the Southern people, as long as they felt an assurance of the maintenance of their rights in the Union, were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more desirous of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more desirous of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more desirous of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution, than the masses of the Northern people, and were more devotedly attached to the Constitution and the great people and a Louisville ? Again, we offer to bear the expense of changing the gauze, and we offer to permit cars from Cincinnati to run into the same depot alonside of the cars on our Southern roads, and there to provide every facility for the cheavest and specifical transfer of freights. The Balimore and Ohio road has purchased for resistance and who, when they felt that their rights were assalled, deemed it a duty to resist those who attempted the invasion of those rights. Alabama does not hold within her borders a citizen who more fully appreciates the noble qualities of her people, or who more despley sympathizes with them in the injuries now forced upon them, then we do; and the people of Kassacky, without reference to forsity political distinctions, have just expressed by an almost unanimous vote, their detestation of the tyranny which now oppresses so many of her sister States. We have attained his healthful political position, not by keping alive former dissensions and reviving dead issues, but by a union of Federal and Confederate elements in support of principle applicable to the issues of the hour. The question with cach of us is, not who was against us many years ago, but who is with us to-day? The result is a fusion so complete, a nutual political amnesty so perfect that harmony and victory have succeeded to past dissensions, and Kenelland and the proper intended to the party favored negro suffrage. SEARCH FOR A PIRATE'S TREASURE

IN NORTH CAROLINA. Singular Story of the Seekers of the Hidden Wealth.

[From the Nortont (Va.) Journal, Ang. 3.]

Co Saturday our city was visited by two mem from Ferquinams county, North Carolina, who came here for the purpose of purchasing a loadstone. They had to make numerous inquiries before finding what they wanted, as they did not think one of ordinary power equal to the performance of the work in hand.

From a conversation with one of them we

From a conversation with one of them we carn that they live near the source of one of learn that they live near the source of one of the numerous streams running from the great Dismal into Albemarie Sound. Their neighborhood retains to this day many traditions of hyene, or Blackbeard, the fitned pirate of the calculation of the Laster and weben worlds, yet serve to adorn the pages of they a book, with which the peaceful traveler of to-day may while away the loars of a plange over the very sea which were first lit th with the flames of the devoted vessels when Blackbeard had captared.

Because that he does not be sourced to the source of a plange over the very sea which were first lit th with the flames of the devoted vessels when Blackbeard had captared.

were area. The way with the same and captured.

It seems that his fave-tie haust, or rendezyous, was that part o North Carolina to which we have above referred. In his time, it was an unexplored wildershes, approachable from the ocean by a navigation made dangerous by the shifting sands, which have since accumulated so as to form the merces strip which now divides the waters of the sounds from those of the ocean; and on the land side, protected by the missing, the fens, the realities and the super-sitions of that unspeciraties and the super-sitions of that unspecirated and secunityly impenetrable moras—the

seems to turn neither to the right nor to the left until their arrival at the check, when they open ranks and form a circle around it, each looking fixedly, at it. After standing thus a short while they reform, and retrace their way to the shore, and again comes the sounds of the cuttases being sheathed, of the orders to re-embark, and of the same long stroke of the glootly oars gradually fading away into sleence, Again is the pit filled up, the cheet lost to view, and all their labor to be again gone over.

This is the story of these men, and mark you, fully credited by themselves, whatever the reader may think of it. Hearing that the load-tone would be available in drawing the chest from the pit when once open, they came down here to procure it.

May untold riches reward them, and may the ghost of Blackbeard and his horde be bannots, note, and from the habitations of men into the deep fastness of the Dismal, where civilization is not likely to annoy them for another century.
